PULPIT SCOUTS MORE DEFENSE

Dr. Baird Says 3,000 Miles of Ocean Is Sufficient Protection to U. S.

Sunday was what might be called National Preparedness Day in the pulpits of America. The leading clergyman of the land had been asked to preach on the subject of adequate national preparedness, and the organization behind this movement had confidently expected that the voice of the pulpit would favor a congressional program for a larger army and navy.

Dr. Phil Baird of the First Presbyterian church, some days ago was notified by the Philadelphia headquarters of this organization that he was commissioned to speak on the subject December 5th.

"It was the first intimation I had of the matter," said Dr. Baird from the pulpit Sunday morning. "But my anxiety forbids that I take a date, so we will discuss the subject this morning as best we may."

In a splendidly clear and authentic manner he analyzed the relation of church and state throughout the history of the race, justifying our own decision as a nation to completely ignore the one from the other. His text was from Proverbs: "Wise men exalteth a nation, etc." and from that he easily found himself in complete variance with those who would have the nation expend money for a larger army and navy. "I would have an adequate navy," said the pastor, "but no military dominance on the land."

Quoting from a speech made by Claude Weaver, who in 1903, Dr. Baird said that republican since becoming a state had contributed $200,000,000 to build a submarine fleet for every family in the state.

Dr. Baird believed that these thousand miles of ocean would protect the nation from any attack, and that the character of the individual American is such that he would not permit that any country should have a fleet of submarines in his waters.

The sermon was a powerful argument against the United States armament on any point, and was the exact opposite of what the Philadelphia organization wished for.

THESE CASES ARE PENDING

Number of Important Cases May Reach Early Decision By the Supreme Court

FIVE very important cases are pending in the supreme court of Oklahoma, including one that likely will be presented to that body this week, the first case coming in from Grand county affecting the taxation of public building bonds in which many banks have invested their capital stock.

The case testing the gross production tax is up for rehearing, as also is the case brought against the state by the Insurance Company of North America to test the validity of the new insurance law, known as House Bill No. 70.

A case from Muskogee county is a test of the law placing a penalty of ten per cent against unpaid taxes.

Another case of considerable importance as affecting counties where oil and gas are produced is a test of the Campbell Russell law providing for distribution of the gross production tax in all the producing counties according to scholastic population and not returning the tax to the county from which it is collected.

INDICTMENTS AT TULSA 165

Law and Order Mill Continues to Grind Out New Accusations Daily

TULSA, Dec. 6.—One hundred and sixty-five indictments had been returned up to Monday morning by the grand jury that has been in session, and it now is rumored that some accusations against persons in high places are to be returned before the end of the current week.

The case of Foster N. Burns, deposed chief of police, charged with neglect of duty in failing to close illicit resorts operating here, has been set for trial December 20. In the district court Saturday, Burns entered a plea of not guilty.

The "barrowing details" of an "infamous" conspiracy to enforce the law in Tulsa county which had its origin in the churches of Tulsa some two years ago were brought out in all their "awfulness" by P. M. Malloy, of counsel for Burns, in a rehearing today before Judge Conn Linn on a motion to quash the now famous grand jury of Tulsa county which put Burns out of business.

Malloy's Conspiracy Charge Included in the conspirators who Malloy claims were bent on getting the goats of the present city administration are such well known citizens as Murray M. Dunn, general agent of the Gulf Life Insurance company; H. C. Tyrrell, one of the prime movers in the T. M. C. A.; C. N. Hoelmer, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and ministers of practically every church in Tulsa.

The formation of the Law Enforcement club and the publication of a free afternoon daily newspaper known as the Independent Bulletin in the summer of 1914, was told by witnesses. It developed however that the Independent Bulletin was decidedly friendly to Burns as he had been in office but a short while and was practically unknown to members of the Law Enforcement club, however well he might have been known to the Bootleggers and Gamblers Protective association.

only of hate for the Wooden regime. So daring was Malloy in the questions he put to witnesses that he was severely scolded by Judge Linn, who warned him that he must keep within the bounds of propriety.

To everybody in the court room at today's hearing with the exception of Burns and his counsel, the whole proceedings appeared in the light of the joke.

When Burns was first removed from office he stated in the newspapers he carried a "full and free investigation" and that he was anxious for a speedy trial before a jury of his peers as he was confident of acquittal. Now he is combing the grass roots for technicalities in order to evade trial, according to all appearances.

The grand jury was off the job while this hearing today was in progress as practically every member of the body was subpoenaed as a witness. Attorney General Freeling represented the state and paid but little attention to the contents of counsel for the defense, seeming to be satisfied the motion would fail.

INCURABLES CURED

We have excellent success with our new methods in the treatment of cases which are incurable by ordinary or conventional methods. We are mentioning a few of the incurable diseases which we treat with almost universal success.

Heart Diseases—both functional and organic are readily overcome by our spinal methods and other new methods. We slow and strengthen the rapid and weak pulse.

Goitre, Exophthalmic is curable, without surgery—by our new methods. So are scrofula and other ailments, but these ailments are incurable by conventional methods.

Paralysis, most forms, locomotor ataxia and practically all other chronic and stubborn nerve troubles, yield to our new methods. Neuritis is very easily cured.

Stomach disorders, kidney diseases, uterine hemorrhage, painful menstruation and practically all female diseases, are overcome by our new methods—after all other methods fail.

OHIO GOVERNOR SHIES AT 'BIRTH OF NATION'

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—Governor Willis, upon joining the Ohio Corn Boys' party here, refused to fulfill three speaking engagements made for him by Director T. P. Riddle unless arrangements to see the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation" were canceled. This film, which was barred by the Ohio moving picture censors, at Governor Willis's direction, is a dramatization of "The Clansman" by Thomas Dixon, Jr. Riddle yielded to Willis's wish in the matter, although a ticket had been issued to each of the 577 Ohioans on the trip. Governor Willis objects to the picture on the ground that it tends to excite race prejudice.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Breakfast, lunch, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brat Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also breaks the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.
